OVERVIEW

Chris Erb represents small and mid-sized international companies conducting business in the United States, particularly in the areas of computer, internet, and privacy/data security law. He assists with the structuring and formation of corporations, negotiating contracts and agreements, and mitigating risks associated with the U.S. market. Chris draws on his deep knowledge and understanding of European – and particularly German – business practices and law to help clients adapt and strategize from the European to U.S. business environment, including recognizing and avoiding the risks associated with the often litigious U.S. market.

Chris was previously an adjunct professor of law at Temple University School of Law and has been a frequent speaker on cybersquatting and internet law for the Pennsylvania Bar Association. Chris has also contributed articles to various publications including German American Trade and the Association of Chartered Certified Accountants (ACCA) Docket.

RECOGNITION AND INVOLVEMENT

Chris is an active member of the International Association of Privacy Professionals (IAPP), the American Bar Association Business and International Sections, and the German American Chamber of Commerce of Philadelphia. Fluent in German, Chris spent almost five years living in Munich, Germany in addition to a short stint in Frankfurt and a brief period studying in Prague, and has travelled to at least 30 countries on four continents. Chris has worked with clients from many of those countries, including clients from 10 of Germany's 16 states.

Chris is a hockey (both field and ice) and soccer dad and serves as Manager of Owen J. Roberts High School Girls' Ice Hockey Team. He spends a lot of time working in the corner of a cold ice rink or his car during practices. In his spare time, Chris enjoys hiking and aspires to return to playing guitar and bicycling. Chris also enjoys trying new and interesting beers – local, German, or otherwise – so feel free to look for him on Untappd.
